The Examiner and Chronicle each have long accounts of the trial trip of the Monterey, but they reach different conclusions. The Chronicle says the Monterey guns worked well and the Examiner says the recoil smashed things up generally.

ANOTHER VERSION.

Claim That Raycraft Fired the First Shot.

The Stevenson-Millich people claim that the versions of the Buckeye war as given to the press are all wrong, and that the first shot was fired by Arthur Raycraft from the cabin. Millich and the Trimmer brothers claim that they owned the Black-horse originally, but were driven off it by the Raycrafts.

They sent for Parker to come over and look at the ground when Arthur Raycraft opened fire on him. He also fired two shot at Millich who got to cover as soon as he could and then returned the fire.

Stevenson denies that he fired a shot, and that there were not over five or six shots fired in all.

After Raycraft had retreated down the ravine, they nailed Jaqua and Morrison because they saw them heading for the Stevenson cabin which they knew contained enough rifles and sixshooters to equip the Carson Guards for an Indian war.

They gave themselves up voluntarily and the case will come up for a preliminary hearing in Genoa to-day.

Remembered His Valet.

Judge Mesick in his will did not forget his faithful valet. His will reads as follows:

First, I revoke any and all wills by me heretofore made. Second of all that belong to me I give and bequeath to Geo. H. Maxwell, my former partner, one-half, and to my servant, John Rivers, the remaining half. Third, I appoint the said Geo. H. Maxwell my sole executor.

This will is written by my own hand at my room, No. 112, in the Palace Hotel, city and county of San Francisco, Cal.

It is written and signed by me this, the 27th day of February, A. D. 1893.

R. R. MESICK.

After death I wish to be cremated.

R. R. M.

The estate is estimated all the way from $25,000 to $50,000. It consists of a very fine law and also a miscellaneous library. The law library must have cost the judge at the very least $20,000. In addition to these the Judge had considerable mining stock. Large sums are also due him in the shape of uncollected fees for professional services. The Judge did not leave any real estate, and it is doubtful whether he ever owned any. All through his romantic and busy career he seemed to have an aversion for this species of investment.

Fresh Work.

Wednesday morning a party of men, whose farms are being injured by the high water in the East Fork of the Carson river, cut the rope and pulled out the boom-stick of the newly erected dam on the West Fork. The dam cost $1,700, of which $500 was subscribed by Douglas county. The dam was erected so as to keep the waters of the East Fork in its natural channel, and to prevent the East Fork from flowing over into the West Fork, thus injuring those who live on the West Fork. Had the dam been washed out, it would have entailed a heavy loss on those who erected the dam and depended on it for a protection to their crops.—Courier.

ENCOURAGING SETTLERS.

The Nice Reception Three Californians Received in Nevada.

Some months ago three Californians, brothers, came into Spanish Spring Valley in this State and found some very desirable land. They located on the land and then had it surveyed that they might enter it in the usual way. After paying the Surveyor, they started to enter the land, but found that it had just been entered a few days before. They hunted up the parties who had entered it, and these parties wanted $500 to get off.

The three brothers thought it very queer that the land which had been lying there unapplied for so long should be so suddenly snapped up, and denouncing the whole thing as a small blackmail job, they packed their effects and went back to California.

The APPEAL learns that this is the way other would-be settlers in this State have been treated and that there is a land ring in Nevada comprised of surveyors and "insiders" who play their game systematically and make a very good thing out of it.

If such is the case it is high time the actions of these men were ventilated and the men who retard settlement of lands in Nevada and levy tribute on settlers, be exposed and punished.

Call and Get Your Bit.

ED. APPEAL:—I see that young Thaxter refuses to pay the costs in the case where he was convicted of discharging firearms in the city limits. The Thaxters and their relatives have received more from Ormsby county than almost anybody I know of. Wouldn't it be a good idea to raise the money by popular ten cent subscription?

Enclosed find ten cents to start the ball rolling.

Tin Discovery at Lovelock.

Lovelock is all excitement over the discovery of tin ore in that place. The find was made some time ago by George Lovelock Sr., but every effort has been made to keep it a secret. About ten days ago Mr. Lovelock was in Winnemucca. The object of this visit was then unknown, but it now transpires that he brought some of the ore here to be tested by an expert who has worked in the tin mines of Cornwall. The test was made and it is said that the ore carried over 50 per cent tin. Samples have been sent to the State University at Reno for a further and more complete test.—Silver State.

The Motherly Instinct.

Mrs. Wm. O'Neill had a scare and a fortunate escape last Sunday. Her little son Johnnie, aged six years, fell into Trout Creek while playing on its banks in the afternoon. The creek is up and its current was very rapid. Mrs. O'Neill saw the child and plunged into rescue it. After a long struggle she succeeded in getting to land, completely exhausted. She was unconscious for some time, but happily a serious consequence was averted. What would a mother not risk for her child!—Truckee Republican.
